Day 0: New Challenges Await

Recap:

Today marks the beginning of an important milestone in each cadet's career. This morning, students from across the United States gathered to better themselves as cadets and as citizens. Although today was stressful, it will forever serve as an important reminder to never give up. No matter what school the students are in, encampment will always teach those who are willing to learn.

Wisconsin Basic School:

Basic students took their first steps as a newly formed team today. In-processing was conducted, the barracks were set up, and the encampment staff were introduced to the students. Following introductions, the flights began conducting intensive drills on their way to lunch. After lunch, the first barracks inspections of the week were conducted. These activities will serve as the standards demanded for the rest of the week.

Cadet Development Course:

Returning students for their second year at Cadet Development Course began the day as individuals. However, they slowly began to realize that they must work as a team in order to succeed. Today marks the first day returning students were exposed to effective methods of leadership

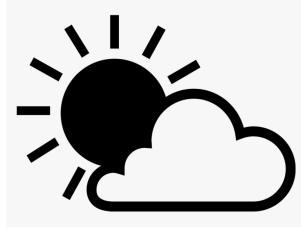

Wisconsin Cadet Academy:

Today, Candidates were immediately exposed to a fast-paced critical thinking environment requiring them to problem solve using their wealth of knowledge. As the Candidates adjusted to the environment, they began to learn how to keep calm in moments of ambiguity.
